Subject: 2023 Senate Elections

The time for nominations for officers and representatives of the University Senate is approaching. Your participation in shared governance is an essential element of a world class university. Faculty participation in the Senate is the most direct way to have a voice in addressing these issues and challenges. While there is work involved, there are also significant benefits to you, your unit and the University by agreeing to be nominated to run for election as a Senate officer, member of Faculty Assembly or member of a Senate Committee. Please feel free to contact me at rlk25@pitt.edu if you would like to know more about what any of these positions would involve.

If you are willing to be nominated, please indicate below the area(s) that are of interest to you. In early February, a member of the Committee for Elections will contact you to determine your interest in being nominated. Additional information about the Senate and the specific responsibilities of the Standing Committees can be found at www.univsenate.pitt.edu
